| The most immediately actionable market in our pipeline. Dense with high quality independent venues that have no existing ticketing contracts. A digitally mature market where consumers already pay a premium for live experiences. |             | The largest live events market in continental Europe. Deep festival and club culture across every major city. Over 300 mid-size venues with no confirmed ticketing exclusive, sitting squarely in Tixr's sweet spot. |       | English speaking and digitally mature with a strong appetite for international touring acts. Every playbook built in Netherlands and Germany transfers here directly, making it the most efficient third market we could choose. |        |

KEY RISKS

|  Netherlands                                   |  Germany                                                      |  Australia                     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| SeatGeek holds presence but without long term contracts. Local payment method iDEAL must be live before first event goes on sale. | Large arenas run 6 to 18 month procurement cycles. Strategy is to lead with mid-size venues and build credibility before approaching the top tier. | Rod Laver Arena, Hamer Hall, and Crown Perth are locked with Ticketek. Focus is on independent and mid-size venues. |
| Melkweg and Paradiso are locked with Ticketmaster. Do not pursue.                                                                 | SEPA and Klarna payment integration required before launch.                                                                                        | Crown Live Theatre window closes August 2026 if an incumbent re-signs. Move fast.                                   |
